German Foreign Office Finds American Note Much More Friendly Than Had Been Expected.

The Hague (via London), Feb. 13 .- The German Legation has again warned neutral vessels against entering the war area around the British Isles as defined by the German Admiralty, and to the original note adds

"Since Germany, following the example of Great Britain, declared as a war zone on and after February 18, English and Irish waters, the British have declared all the ports of England to be war ports and have justified the use of neutral flags on merchant vessels. "Moreover, according to a reliable source, a great number of British merchantmen have been armed in order to destroy German submarines by shells or by ramming them. Thereby these ships lose their character as merchant ships and become war vessels. "Germany, therefore, is again obliged urgently to warn all neutral ships against entering English coast waters after February 18, as from that date the German Admiralty will prosecute the war with all means at its disposal against British war ports and British armed merchant ships. "Neutral vessels which are then still within the war zone will run the same risks as if they pursued a course through sea battles between Great Britain and Germany of which the date and place could not have many cannot take the responsibility. "The route around the North of Scotland, owing to the depth of the waters, cannot be endangered by mines. There, as well as in the waters of the North Sea, with the exception of British waters and German bays, neutral shipping will not be endangered by the measures the German Admiralty is adopting."

British officials at first were positive that the Wilhelmina's cargo would go through a prize court, but now they say it is uncertain what course will be taken pending an investigation. That owners of the vessel at first asked the same price for the cargo as they would have received for it in Germany. The American Commission was unwilling to pay this amount.

The Withelmina will proceed to the Bristol Channel as soon as it is possible to repair the damages caused by the heavy weather experienced during the voyage across the Atlantic from New York.
